Although the French leader did the inviting, since France is the current chairman of the EEC's Council of Ministers, it was learned that the idea was Mr. Schmidt's. The speed with which the meeting was arranged was

British Prime Minister Herold Wilson accepted the invitation this morning, although with a British election campaign getting under way and Britain's member-ship in the EEC a campaign issue, Mr. Wilson will attend mostly for appearances' sake.

In the absence of British lead-ership on European questions and given the relative weakness of the other EEO countries, the tandem of France and West Germany looks like the motivating force toward greater European unity. It will be at next Saturday's dinner, which probably will be held at the Hissee Palace that the geven other members will learn what directions the French and German leaders decided on last Monday.

The idea for this dinner is to discuss the possibilities for substantial progress at a summit, progress that would erase the memories of last year's summit failure in Copenhagen. Kuwait Offers £107 Million for U.K. Firm

By Terry Robards

LONDON, Sept. 6 (NYT).— Kuwait, one of the richest Middle East oil-producing countries, today offered to pay £107 million (about $246 million) for a British commercial-real-estate company. It was the largest Arab invest-ment move in the West disclosed

Acting through a Scottish investment bank, the Kuwait Minstry of Finance and Oil proposed to buy all of the shares of the St. Martin's Property Corp., whose real-estate holdings are concentrated in London's financial district and extend to the Continent and Australia

The proposal, which is subject acceptance by the stockholders of St. Martin's Property, represents a continuing effort to find productive investments in the West for the rapidly growing accumulation of Arab funds arising from the quadrupling of oil prices in the last 10 months.

Itanian Purchase Economists believe a major part of the funds being amassed by oil-producing nations must inevitably flow into Western business and industry. Less than two months ago, Iran bought about 25 per cent of Fried Krupp Hnettenwerke AG, a major West German steel-producing company, reportedly for about $100 million. It was believed to be the first purchase by an oil-producing country of a major stake in a oil states have made smaller investments, mainly in real estate. in England and the United States.

He declined to disclose what other foreign investments Kuwalt had made, although the an-nouncement said the take-over bid "represents a further extension of the investment in prop-erty. The Kuwait Investment Ministry of Finance and Oil, has been operating in London for about 20 years.

2 Cypriot Chiefs Meet, Reach Some Accords

NICOSIA, Sept. 6 (NYT).-President Glafkos Clerides and Rauf Denktash, the head of the Turkish-Cypriot administration, met privately tonight for the first time since the Geneva conce on the Cyprus crisis collapsed more than three weeks ago.

Mr. Clerides, the leader of the Greek-Cypriot community on the island, and Mr. Denkiash were said to have had "a private exchange of views on refugee prob-lems and other important issues." Their meeting, held after a three-hour session attended by the two leaders and other officials, stirred speculation movement toward new political negotiations might be starting. The larger meeting, at which the participants included Luis Weckmann Munoz, a special representative of UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, produced an agreement between the two Cypriot leaders to exchange lists of prisoners and missing persons and to establish a plan for the release of prisoners and detained

Another Meeting

The leaders also agreed to give priority to treatment of refugees who are sick, young and old. They scheduled another meeting for next Friday.

Today's meeting had been arranged at the request of Mr. Waldheim, to consider "humanitarian" issues, such as the refugee problem created by the

A number of ranking diplomats said before the meeting that they hoped it might be broadened by the two Cypriot leaders to begin a discussion of the sharp political differences senarating the two failed and the Turkish Army advanced to occupy 40 per cent of the island.

The agreements on the humanitarian issues - there are an estimated 230,000 displaced persons on the island-were considered a sign, however slight, of progress toward improving relations between the two hostle

Sources close to Mr. Clerides said after today's hourlong private meeting that the President had carried no agenda into the session and did not tell some of his most trusted assistants what would be discussed, if anything, beyond the humanitarian questions.

Diplomats here had said that there were several proposals "in the air" that might lead to progress toward formal negotiations. One reportedly was for a token reduction of the 40,000 Turkish troops on the island.

Another, the diplomats said, was that the Turkish side give Mr. Clerides private assurance that a small number of Greek Cypriot refugees would be allowed to return to their homes in the area now controlled by Turkish troops. The place most often suggested for the return, the diplomats said is Famagusta a resort city on the eastern coast

The diplomats said that, in order to win these concessions Mr. Clerides presumably would have to agree that the Greek Cypriots would eventually approve the division of Cyprus into two autonomous sectors within federated republic.

Mr. Clerides has said publicly that he would not agree to such talks. He has said, however, that he would agree to discuss the proposal if other political prob-lems in the administration of but it was not known here whether they carried to tonight's meeting any new proposals for Cyprus could also be placed on each other from Greece and Tur-

Visitors Say Chou Is Back In Hospital

PEKING, Sept. 6 (Reuters).— Premier Chon En-lai, who has been suffering from a heart ail-ment for the last four months, has returned to a hospital and is too ill to receive foreign visitors, American and West German delegations here said to-

The illness of the 76-year-old Premier, the country's top administrator and the man who presided over China's détente with the United States, Japan and other non-Communist countries, inevitably raised speculation about whether he will ever resume full duties.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey D-Minn., who is here with a U.S. congressional delegation, said Chinese officials had indicated that the Premier's condition had worsened recently.

And a West German group, led by opposition leader Helmut Kohl was told Mr. Chou had overstrained himself during a public appearance July 31, at a reception marking China's Army

West German sources said Mr. Kohl had been told the Premier was to ill to meet him

Sen, William Fulbright, D-Ark., speaking along with Sen Humphrey to reporters at a reception held at the American Liaison Office confirmed that the Premier was too ill to receive visitors but added: "No one said he was gravely ill to me." [Sen. Humphrey, reached by the Associated Press, said, "The vice-premier told us Chou's condition was worse than it was when Sen, Jackson saw him, This was why the Premier was unable to see us. This was a fact but it didn't mean that his condition was critical or that it had worsened."] deputy premier, said he opposed a resumption of the Geneva peace conference. He confirmed that he would meet tomorrow with Archbishop Makarios, the deposed president of Cyprus, in Geneva. "I will put him in the picture over what we have done so far and listen to his views," Mr. Mayros said

Mr. Mayros declined to speculate on the future of American bases in Greece. But he acknowledged that "a wave of anti-Americanism" had spread across Greece, "It is up to the government of the United States to remove the factors that make us feel the way we do about the United States," he said.

The thrust of Mr. Mayros's visit here-which will be followed after tomorrow's trip to Geneva by calls in Bonn and Brussels—was to move Greece further away from the United States and closer to the Common Market countries.

When asked whether Greece was "flirting" with the Soviet Union, Mr. Mayros replied: "The fact that Greece has pulled out of NATO does not signify that we are a nonaligned power, nor that we have changed the orientation of our policies. We want to have good relations with all our neighbors, even the Soviet bloc."

"But Greece remains European," he said. "That is a fact. We belong to Europe and we for European integration. Mr. Mayros labeled as "unacceptable and dangerous" the dependence of European security on "entente between the surpowers which is founded on the balance of terror." France, which currently holds the rotating presidency of the Common Market, has sided with Greece in its confrontation with Turkey over Cyprus. The French have been pressing for a unified Common Market policy on Cyprus and want the bloc to have a role in any Cyprus settlement. Mr. Mavros said he was counting on France to help Greece in its efforts to join the EEC. "France plays a capital role in Europe," he said. "And naturally she can help in this respect. The will exists and I am optimistic." But he indicated that he thought it would take three or four years for Greece to move from an associate member of the Common Market to full membership. The Greek Foreign Minister said that he and Mr. Giscard d'Estaing had discussed France's promise to sell Greece 50 Mirage fighters, but declined to give

He wanders alone or with his friend Charles (Bebe) Rebozo along Red Beach in sight of Secret Service men who, out of his hearing, refer to him as "the old man" and try to stay out of his way. Sometimes he rummages through the stacks of unanswered mail in his mementostrewn office or disconsolately plays the plano. At other times he talks on the telephone to his lawyers and occasionally to old friends or to former White House subordinates who now work for President Ford.

Europe's 'Sugar Crisis' Stirs Cries Against EEC Policies

By Douglas Ramsey

BRUSSELS, Sept. 6 (WP).-"Finding it hard to buy sugar, Madam?" questioned the lead editorial in a mass-circulation daily in Britain recently. "Blame it on the madcap schemes thought up in the Common Market."

World sugar shortages and rocketing prices are causing a stir everywhere, but nowhere has the reaction been as hostile as in the European Economic Com-

EEC officials will come to their own defense next week with proposals aimed at reassuring the European consumer of adequate supplies in the future at reasonable, although increasing, prices,

Despite panic buying throughout the nine-member EEC, gov-ernment officials and sugarcompany sources deny that a real shortage exists on the Continent, The scare began in Britain in early summer and has spread to the rest of Europe, they say, even though real shortages are only predicted for Britain,

This summer, British shops voluntarily rationed their sales and are still doing so in many parts of the country. The supply situation is being squeezed by a fall in home production as well as foreign imports. Supplies from the Commonwealth cane producers are down an estimated 300,000 tons and the sugar-beet harvest in Britain will mean a 200,000-ton drop in production, according to British Sugar Corporation sources.

Caribbean Suppliers High-level sources at the Common Market here indicate that Jamaica and several other Caribbean suppliers may stop their exports to the EEC next year. A Jamaican spokesman here "categorically" denied any such plans are being made but added that unless the EEC can offer a high enough contract in return for a supply guarantee, Jamaica is better off selling on the American market.

very real shortage in Britain forced the government last month to dip into emergency stocks and place them on the market. Now London is looking to the Commonwealth south of the equator for additional help. Secret negotiations are reportedly under way in London with Australian authorities to conclude a five-year supply con-tract which would guarantee 300,000 tons of supplies yearly from Jan, 1, Australia has re-portedly asked for a price more than four times higher than the going rate on its present exports to Britain.

Meanwhile, to tide the country over until next year, Britain is seeking to purchase 200,000 tons of sugar from Australia for delivery in December and January, according to high sources here. But Australian suppliers have made it clear that the British consumer will have to pay the price for guaranteed supplies,

Go-It-Alone Policy Britain's avowed readiness to pursue a go-it-alone policy clearly irks officials here in Brussels. The EEC Executive Commission is about to unveil proposals for regulating the European sugar mar-ket from 1975 on, including support prices that would encourage beet growers to produce well beyond EEC needs. The proposals will reverse a two-year-old stance here that European production should be dampened to let develshare of the European market. Meanwhile, supermarkets on the Continent supplied with locally produced beet sugar are replenishing their stocks at a breakneck Last week, the leader of France's influential sugar-beet industry went on nationwide radio to warn housewives to "stock up on sugar" for the next two months. Blasting an earlier scheme devised by EEC officials to control European sugar output and import more Caribbean sugar, Henri Cayre said EEC officials had "created the shortage when they should have organized abundance." Sugar experts at Common Market headquarters in this city react violently to this criticism. One of them said: "These are scare tactics by the beet growers to pressure for bigger subsidies under the long-term proposals near completion. Wholesalers in France and Belgium seem to agree that Mr. Cayre's claims constitute scare tactics. A spokesman at Générale Sucrière, one of France's leading distributors, said that stocks were at normal levels until recently. "But unless this panic buying stops, we'll have to slow down our deliveries voluntarily to make the stocks last," he said.

France Invites EEC Leaders To Pre-Summit on Summit

(Continued from Page 1) That exclusion, coupled with Mr. Schmidt's attack on the commission yesterday as being a "vastly inflated" bureaucracy, is a clear indication that the French and German leaders were concerned with strengthening the decision-making apparatus of the Council of Ministers at the expense of the supranational executive that is the commission. In the jargon of Europe, it would be a point for confederation at the expense of federation. At the same time, however, any move toward weighted majority voting in the Council of Minister would be a move away from the Gaullist-imposed system of manimous voting. U.S.-Soviet Pact on Jews Expecial

By Robert C. Toth MOSCOW, Sept. 6.—Jewish dissidents here, on the basis of news smuggled in from the United States, expect a Soviet-American agreement next week that would facilitate large-scale emigration to Israel.

According to Jewish sources, who said such information has been "generally accurate" in the past, the agreement is to be signed by either President Ford or Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and their Soviet counterparts, and then be formally de-posited with the Senate.

In exchange for Soviet concessions on immigration, the Jackson Amendment—proposed by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash barring U.S. trade concessions to the Soviet Union would be modified to give Mr. Ford authority to pro vide most-favored-nation (MFN) status and export credits for one

No fixed immigration quots will be specified in the agreement, sources said, but 50,000 for the first year has been "suggested as an index of Soviet good faith" and it is expected here that the number will exceed that when the agreement is fully implemented. The Soviet Union does not regard emigration as a right of its citizens but as a privilege, the Soviet Union will have made a significant switch in its attitude toward emigration.

Beyond the ideological implications, such a change will acknowledge that Western pressure can moderate internal Soviet policies, which may in turn lead to further demands by other na-

U.S. Team Halts Grain Sur When Russia Curbs Itiner

By Dan Morgan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6 (WP). —A team of American experts which went to the Soviet Union last month to gather information on the country's 1974 grain crop was called home by the U.S. government last week because Moscow rejected most of its travel

According to Richard Bell, deputy assistant secretary of agriculture, the mission of the threemember team was to inspect the spring wheat crop planted in the so-called "new lands" of western Siberia and northern Kazakhstan, which the late Premier Nikits Khroshchev had developed.

However, repeated requests to go deep into those areas were turned down and the team felt the area approved was "not ger-mane," Mr. Bell said. As a result, the Agriculture Department, after getting the approval of the State Department, told the team to come home.

The recall marked a high point of U.S. irritation over continued Soviet secrecy concerning its harvests and crops.

The Soviet Union is by far the world's biggest producer of wheat and grains. The Agriculture Department has estimated this year's crop at 195 million tons However, unusually wide fluctuations in past Soviet crops have disrupted world markets because of the country's sudden demand for foreign grain to make up Key to Planning was not seriously considered by military planners, who have come to accept the deterrent concept that a nuclear attack would lead to mutual suicide between two nations. But they have never com-pletely dismissed the possibility that a nation might successfully conduct a pre-emptive attack without being destroyed in return. Ozone—a form of oxygen with three instead of the two atoms in a molecule—is found in abundance in the lower stratosphere. It forms a protective layer against radiation, absorbing in particular the shortwave, ultraviolet rays which can tear apart protein molecules in plants and animals. In a way not previously under-stood, the heat of storage explo-sions produces molecules of nitric oxides, which as they rise with the atomic cloud interreact with and destroy the ozone molecules without being destroyed themselves.

While there is still some uncertainty about the extent of this interreaction, there is now general agreement within the scientific community that large-scale nuclear explosions could cause con-siderable depletion of the ozone

Mr. Ikle summed up the pre-valling scientific judgment: "We do not know how much ozone depletion would occur from a large number of nuclear explo-sions—it might be imperceptible, but it also might be almost total. We do not know how long such depletion would last—less than one year or over 10 years.

"And above all, we do not know what this depletion would do to plants, animals and people. Perhaps it would merely increase the hazard of sumburn. Or perhaps it would destroy critical links of the intricate food chain of plants and animals, and thus shatter the ecological structure that permits man to remain alive on this

The Arms Control Agency, according to Mr. Ikle, "stumbled" across its finding about eight months ago in some still secret studies by the Atomic Energy Commission. On the basis of its own unclassified studies, the agency confirmed the existence of

FDA critics cite many instances in which the agency has declined to ban a chemical when animal evidence indicates the chemical is harmful. Sodium nitrate and nitrite, MSG (a taste enhancer), and ret dye No. 2 (the artificial coloring that makes strawberry soft drinks book red) are examples. MSG is an amino acid derivative which enhances the taste of protein-containing "foods. The merican food industry has used it for 50 years or longer. Baby food manufacturers are notable examples. They used to put MSG in baby food to make its taste pleasing to mothers, who habitually sample a bit before feeding it to their children. Olney's Study

In 1969 Dr. John Omey of Washington University in St. Louis reported that MSG caused brain damage when fed to infant mice and rats. This undesirable effect is apparently related to MSG's capacity to excite nerve cells, the same mechanism by which it enhances flavor.

Other scientists subsequently confismed Dr. Olney's result and in 1970 the FDA asked the National Anademy of Sciences to assess MSG's safety. It also asked three industrial laboratories to repeat the animal experiments. The three labs failed to induce the brain damage reported by

Dr. Olney and the others, The academy study concluded that the risk of MSG in baby food is extremely small. However, because MSG serves no useful purpose in baby food except to please mothers tastes, it recommended MSG not be added

A statement prepared for yes-terday's regular State Department briefing, but undelivered because the occasion did not arise, said that the validation "constituted a courtesy toward the senators only and in no way can be construed as a change in our policy of restricting travel to Cuba..."

The tactic was in line with Mr Kissinger's determination to maintain a facade of status quo on Cuba, even though a move-ment has developed within the Organization of American States for normalization of relations with the Socialist government of Premier Pidel Castro. Restricted Policy

Spokesmen for the two senators said yesterday that the Cuban government had signaled its willingness to receive the leg-islators. They said the State Department had been reluctant to validate the senators' passports under the present restricted

The policy requires that U.S. citizens wishing to travel to Cuba receive a specific waiver from the travel ban. The waiver normally is valid for one round trip. In recent years such validations have been granted routinely.

The Rev. Joseph O'Rourke was dismissed by letter yesterday, according to a statement of the Very Rev. Eamon Taylor, provincial of the New York Province of the Society of Jesus. It removed Father O'Rourke from the order, but not from the priesthood, the Rev. Joseph Novak, assistant to the provincial, said today, Father O'Rourke baptized the infant in a widely publicized ceremony several weeks after baptism was denied by a local priest because the infant's mother, Carol Morreale, supports freedom of choice on abortion.

The statement on the priest's dismissal said that "many and repeated efforts to communicate with Father O'Rourke personally had been unsuccessful," so notice of the dismissal was mailed to him at his Manhattan address.

The Corn Crop and Food Prices

Things are not going well these days for American food policy. Protected neither by Our traditional grain surpluses nor by export controls, U.S. markets are now swinging wildly with each successive crop report, rumor and speculative pounce. The most striking current example is the corn crop, sharply reduced by the summer's drought. Since there is no hope of rebuilding U.S. national reserves of corn over the next year, the figures can lead only to the conclusion that the United States needs to begin. developing export controls.

A month ago, exporters had registered commitments to sell a bit more than 600 million bushels of corn abroad. Since the Agriculture Department had forecast exports of 750 million to 900 million bushels for the coming year, those registrations were no cause for alarm. But the atmosphere changed on Aug. 18, when the new registrations were published. Suddenly the total jumped to 949 million bushels, significantly above the department's highest estimate—for a crop year that does not even begin until Oct. 1. The Agriculture Department's explanation is that the exporters are writing contracts, sometimes with their own subsidiarles, to protect their positions in case export controls are eventually imposed. No doubt there is a lot to that explanation, but it does not mean quite what the Agriculture Department suggests—that some of these contracts are phony and, if the year goes on without controls, they will be torn up and thrown away. What those contracts really mean is that the exporters are reserving the right to decide, as the year goes on, whether to sell this corn abroad or in the United States, wherever the price is better-or, you might say, wherever the inflation in foodstuffs is running higher. From the exporters' point of view, it is a normal hedging operation. But it indicates that the export registration statistics are meaningless. The department would be a great deal wiser to acknowledge that neither it nor anyone else knows, under the present reporting system, how much of this corn is actually going to go abroad. All we know is that these contracts cover a substantially larger proportion of the crop than the department itself expected a month ago.

being harvested this fall. The United States won't have another until a year from now, and if the United States mismanages it, it is going to have to live with the consequences for a long time. The consequences, incldentally, will run far beyond next year's harvest because nearly all of this corn is fed to animals. When it is in short supply and the price rises, farmers begin cutting back their production of meat, eggs and dairy foods This process is already well under way. Poultry and milk production will drop before the end of this year, the department warned last week, and in 1975 there will be diminished supplies of grain-fed beef, pork and poultry coming to market. Diminished supplies mean, of course, higher prices at the grocery store. Because of the long cycles in breeding and raising animals,

The crop, remember, is the one that is particularly cattle, it is a process that cannot be reversed in one year regardless of the size and quality of the grain crops next summer. This sequence is, of course, the reason why food and agricultural markets work differently from markets in manufactured goods. If an automobile maker's sales drop a bit, he can slow down the assembly lines. He can adjust his production from week to week. But the United States gets only one corn crop a year, and the one that is now overrunning the department's export estimates is the one that is going to have to last us until September, 1975.

The rising anxiety within the Agriculture Department may be accurately measured by its vigorous efforts to get the United States' best customers to promise to buy less than they had been expecting. The Japanese have now agreed to scale down their purchases by 10 per cent. The European Common Market also had said that it would cut back, an inclination that doubtless will be strengthened by the unexpected rise in our grain prices. These pledges from abroad are presented by the administration as a wholesome and constructive alternative to the imposition of controls. But it is necessary to ask whether it would not be better for the United States to control its agricultural exports in an explicit and orderly fashion rather than bouncing from one unanticipated exigency to the next, each one resulting in a new round of emergency appeals to customers overseas.

The concept of agricultural export controls generally meets three kinds of criticism: First, it violates the principle of free trade. Second, it disrupts the United States' commercial relations with its foreign customers. Third, it makes no provision for the poor nations. In response, we readily acknowledge that free trade is generally the soundest rule and the United States should depart from it only under the most urgent necessity. But trade in food is a special case. Particularly in a world in which crops are uncertain and there are no significant reserves anywhere. As for the United States' relations with its foreign customers, they could only be improved by a clear understanding of the United States' export capabilities and intentions. Finally, the present system is devised to maximize the United States' foreign exchange earnings, with no regard to inflation at home or famine abroad. It is this system that has precluded . the possibility of substantial American aid this year to the improverished countries.

Export policy may seem a distant and esoteric subject, but the mistakes made here will show up, promptly and inevitably, at the cash register of the neighborhood supermarket. The issue is not whether this fortunate country can neglect its clear moral responsibility to help the rest of the world. Nor is it whether we can neglect the imnortance of foodstuffs in our balance of trade. It is, rather, a matter of stabilizing agricultural markets and preventing the damage that further disruptions promise.

Moscow's Cyprus Maneuvers

Since the coup on July 15, the Soviets have tried every means to use the Cyprus crisis for their own purposes. To start with they backed Makarios and demanded the restoration of the situation as it was "before the Greek military clique intervened." When the Turks landed. Moscow reacted with notable understanding and blamed the Greeks. The collapse of the colonels and the return of Caramanlis seems to have surprised Russia just as much as the overthrow of Makarios had done.

The Soviets were anything but enthusiastic about the Geneva conference and the British efforts at mediation, criticizing the absence of Cypriot representatives at the first round of talks. They rejoiced when the conference broke down and suggested substituting UN mediation. At the same time they declined to give the secretary-general powers that would have enabled him to intervene effectively to keep the peace. Instead, they tried to grasp the initiative by proposing an international conference, and in their eagerness to acquire a say in affairs they seemed to overlook that this might give China similar rights. All in all, Soviet diplomacy seems to have remained at least one jump behind events at every stage.

EEC Agriculture Problems

The root of the problem is that the Community clings to the notion that the common agricultural policy (CAP) genuinely is a common policy-that is, one based on jointly-agreed sims.

In reality it is only a framework for national haggling by governments each of which is defending a different farming industry. Their difficulties in Brussels are magnified by the other community myth, that the CAP is based on a common price system, whereas the arcane contortions of artificial exchange rates and monetary compensation amounts demonstrate the con-

Yet for all its advantages in terms of flexibility—not to mention the electoral benefits it may bring to the Labor partyit would be a grave mistake to imagine that the subsidy road is costless.

Britain already faces the prospect of being the biggest contributor to the community farm fund; subsidies will come on top of that contribution, and will be paid by the British taxpayer, not by the farm fund.

Portugal's New Direction

In Portugal itself the stresses are now severe. New labor laws that require a cooling-off period before strikes have run up against unrest among workers. The junta boldly conscripted striking airport workers. Over the personality of a newspaper editor and a newspaper strike such draconian methods have not been used Nevertheless there are signs of resistance by Portuguese employers to wildcat strikes. Premier Concalves intends to stand firm on the labor law. This test will show just what sort of Portugal is emerging from the coup,

The White House's Crisis Over Al Haig

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON-An urgent feeling by President Ford's closest aides that Gen. Alexander Haig must be removed as his chief of staff soon—perhaps im-mediately—hit fever pitch in two backstage developments last Thursday.

Development No. 1: Haig entered the Oval Office with a commission for Mr. Ford to sign nominating Pat Buchanan, Richard M. Nixon's longtime political adviser and speechwriter, as ambassador to South Africa. Despite Haig's fervent arguments, the President delayed his decision.

Development No. 2: The General Services Administration was instructed by Haig deputy Jerry Jones to move furniture into two Executive Office Building suites next door to the White House for two ex-Nixon aides now in San Clemente: Room 352 for ex-Press Secretary Ron Ziegler, Room 348 for ex-appointments secretary

Buchanan, Ziegler

Mr. Ford's own aides were thunderstruck. They view Buchanan as the symbol of bloody-nose Nixon politicos who undercut Mr. Ford as Vice-President and who now should be removed from government, not promoted to an embassy. As for Ziegler, he is the bad old days incarnate who. they vow, will never be permitted to return to White House premises even to clean up files.

Haig's successes in the vicious rivalry now swirling around the Oval Office have led the thin line of totally loyal Ford aides to a grim conclusion. "The White House staff run by Haig is still functioning in the interests of Richard Nixon and the walking wounded of a lost war," one Ford man told us.

That interpretation makes suspect Haig's private recommendation to the new President for leniency to the old. Though their concern for Mr. Ford may distort their view, these aides believe Haig must share responsibility for inaccurate information given Mr. Ford a month ago that Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski had agreed the White House tapes were Nixon's legal property.

If Haig indeed has put Nixon and his former aides above an undivided allegiance to President Ford, it is indefensible Beyoud residual loyalties, he is also playing the politicized general— warning of right-wing Republican discontent, fighting the President's position on Vietnam amnesty, undercutting Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger. Even Haig's roughest critics concede his uniquly indispensable service to the nation in facilitating Nixon's resignation, thanking heaven it was Al Haig rather than Ron Ziegler to whom Nixon gave unprecedented power. That is why Mr. Ford and his aides publiciy and genuinely praised Haig in the early transition period. But these same aides now insist Hair must go.

Having served as de facto presidept in the final months of Nixon's agony. Haig continued to wield awesome power-greater than many past presidents-after the Ford succession. In his early days as President, Mr. Ford signed the commission for one presidential appointment given him-Nixon style—by Haig with no Ford man even knowing it. That Haig was fulfilling a commitment to his old boss is no excuse.

One incident a month ago convinced some Ford aides that Haig was not in tune with the new President's own interests, He failed to warn Mr. Ford that six hidden microphones, though disconnected, remained in the Oval Office, theoretically a potential for bugging the President, They were not removed until a week after Mr. Ford's Aug. 12 pledge there would be no more electronic envesdropping in the White House.

On a more trivial level, Haig ignored Mr. Ford's desire to replace portraits in the cabinet room of Theodore Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson (Nixon favorites) with Abraham Lincoln and Harry Truman (Ford favorites) until brought to his attention a third time, Coincidentally, Lincoin and Truman were Mr. Ford's models in post-war amnesty

When Haig learned belatedly enroute to Chicago for the Aug. 19 VFW convention that the President would propose amnesty. he protested and prophesied-inaccurately—that the veterans would boo him. Since then, Ford aides charge. Haig has funnelled anti-amnesty sentiment into the Oval Office and overemphasized the strength of protests from the Republican right.

They also believe Haig worked up Mr. Ford about Secretary Schlesinger's safeguards against military take-over during the changing of the presidents. They say Haig, indignant over criticism of the military, was the angry one—not the President Detailed memos from Haig's staff suggesting what Mr. Ford should say and do every hour of the day, a system built by H. R. Haldeman for Nixon, are viewed as "insulting and demeaning" by one Ford in-the billions of dollars that have been earned only because airsuch as Pan Am exist? Stop for a moment and think of the commerce that has been enhanced because some shrewd pilots-turned-executives recognized a need in this world for people to travel from place to place swiftly, comfortably, and reliably. How many of your reporters can be assured of getting a story-or getting to a newsbreak-because there is a regularly scheduled arliner ready to specified hour? And it will depart, too, and get him there as will get the businessman to his urgent conference or the diplomat to his treaty session.

The fact that all of these people can arrive at their destinations means that many other people (most of them Americans) will gain. As benefactors, this commerce may guarantee that we, and thousands of others, will be employed for another year. that a contract is signed or an understanding is achieved, or more peace is established in the world. In our present society a reliable airline is as valuable as a postal system, a news medium, or a telephone network. To allow it to vanish because of an impulsive response to a momentary setback in our national economy would be to send many institutions down an irredeemable path to oblivion. Titimately one society would suffer much more than it would by creating a climate of government al-industrial understanding. Of course, you might reply that other airlines would step in and perform the same functions possibly more chesply, maybe more efficiently, and without public tax support.

Perhaps, but won't that substitute airline be commonted with the same expenses, the same price rises in fuel, the same need to boost salaries?

It is the easier course to simply allow a major carrier that has contributed so much to technology and commerce to collapse merely because we are all screaming that taxes already are too high to recognize that indeed the airline is of real value to us and that all of us must cooperate to see that it may have a reasonable opportunity for survival. After all, if it disappears will the U.S. government render the same services to the public that Pan Am presently does? Absolutely not. And if it did, you would witness the boundoggle to best all boundog-

Moreover, one could argue that our government merits some culpability for permitting a situation to fester in which all of our transportation industries are experiencing hardship. If the fuel analysts, politicians, and other watchdogs of our natural resources (and the resources of mations on which we depend) had been doing their jobs, then the present chaotic fuel calamity might have been avoided. Let's not cut off Pan Am's nose to spite our own red faces.

JOSEPH A. RAFF. Mailorca, Spain.

I was shocked to read the editorial "Must U.S. Bail Out Pan Am" and the commentary "On a Wing and a Prayer," both from The Washington Post, as published in the International Herald Tribune of Aug. 29.

After 35 years as a Pan Am employee I find the present sit-uation of the company incredible.

Can anyone begin to calculate I also find the attitude expressed in the editorial and commentary as incredible. Editorial and commentary completely ignore the pasic fact that the reason Pan Am is in serious financial trouble is not because of mismanagement but because of U.S. government decisions that have ruined the company's competitive posture.

> Let me give you several examples: i. In Alaska, profitable runs were taken away from Pan Am, who had ploneered the area from 1939, and were given to Alaska

As a result none of the three competitors on this route makes any profit.

3. Take the U.S.-Hawaii route. Pan Am pioneered this route in 1935, a great technical achieve-But immediately after World War II, the CAB also cer-tificated United Air Lines to fly to Hawaii. United predictably came the dominant carrier in the market because they could offer one carrier service from points in the U.S. a tremendous competitive advantage specifically denied to Pan Am. Nevertheless, we were doing well in the market, as was UAL, until the CAB certificated Braniff Western, Conthental American and TWA on the route also, from points all over the U.S. At the same time Pan Am was again specifically fair competition was this? There are numerous other examples where the U.S. govern-ment and the State Department and foreign competition to Pan Am to the extent that now it is practically impossible for the company to compete economically. In spite of this, Pan Am after painful reorganization was well on its way to a profitable year in 1973. But then came the fuel crisis with the sudden rise in fuel prices to undreamed-of levels, again a circumstance within domain and control of the U.S. government and not of Pan

I ask you, how in the name of sheer decency and justice can the U.S. government turn its back on Pan Am when the basic cause of its plight has been and still is the repeated decisions of government agencies (principally the CAB) to increase competition with Pan Am and at the same time deny Pan Am the operating authority to compete fairly? Subsky at this time appears to be the only solution temporarily until the previous wrongs can be righted and Pan Am given a fair chance to commete WILLIAM W. MOSS.

That is what comes when in some sudden emergency of their lives men find themselves unsupported by clear convictions that transcend their immediate and personal desires."

This suggests the condition of Britain today, and of most of the Western world. But governments alone are not wholly to blame. Maritime Strike Seen in France

PARIS, Sept. 6 (AP).—A major seamen's union said yesterday that it would call a general strike of all French seamen and hold a sit-in in the transatlantic liner Prance, if the decision to pull the liner out of service next month is not rescinded. A government spokesman said earlier that there was "no chance whatsoever" that the liner would be reprieved. It has been costing the state about 100 million francs ($20 million) a year to subsidize the liner.

The seamen's branch of the Communistied General Confederation of Labor said its planned strike would dramatize the serious state of the French merchant marine, in which 20,000 jobs have been lost since 1960,

Many mothers find that their mixed children become signs of disgrace. People assume that the mothers were bar girls and prostitutes, although many were secretaries, shop assistants or maids who happened to fall in love with Americans, lived with them and expected to marry them eventually.

Mothers often suffer economically from the rejection. Those who want work as live-in maids, for exemple, say they find Viet-namese families generally are unwilling to have mixed-race children on the premises. And the chances of marrying a Vietnamese are slim.

W. Germany Pledges Aid to Bangladesh

BONN, Sept. 6 (Reuters).— West Germany today promised Bangladesh support for long-term development projects, including flood control, irrigation and the exploitation of the country's natural-gas deposits. The promise was given during talks here between Bangladesh Foreign Minister Kamal Hussain and Alwin Brueck, state secretary in the Ministry of Economic Cooperation and Development Aid, an official statement said. Bonn has pledged to give Bangladesh 90 million marks ($33 million) in capital aid this year.

Labor Party

British White Paper Sets Post-Vote Goal

LONDON, Sept. 6 (UPI).-The Labor government announced plans today to outlaw discrimination against women.

The Labor party said that if it is returned to power in the general election which is expected introduce legislation barring discrimination against women in jobs, job training, housing, schools and universities, hotels, restaurants and other sectors of public

In a white paper entitled "Equality for Women," the party said it would set up an equal op-portunities commission as a watchdog agency to insure that

It said the planned legislation also would provide for unspecified court damages in cases of sex discrimination. "The unequal status of women is wasteful of the potential talents of half our population in a society which, more than ever, needs to mobilize the skill and ability of all its citizens," the white paper

The white paper said all-men's or all-women's clubs would be ex-empted from the planned anti-discrimination bill. It said schools exclusively for either boys or girls also would be exempted.

Sweden to Free Wennerstroem, Ex-Soviet Agent

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 6 (UPI).-Stig Wennerstroem, the retired Swedish Air Force colonel who as a spy informed Moscow of U.S. plans to blockade Cuba in 1962 and gave NATO information to Kremlin agents, will be released from prison next week, the government said today.

Wennerstroem, 67, has spent more than 10 years in prison. He will be released on probation. He was arrested in 1963, convicted of spying for the Soviet Union and sentenced to life imprisonment. The term was later changed to 20

During 15 years of spying for the Russians, Wennerstroem had held several sensitive positions in the Swedish military, including that of air attaché to Moscow and Washington. After his retirement from the air force, he worked as a Foreign Ministry expert

At the time of his arrest, American defense officials said that the information he had given the Russians amounted to leaving NATO's northern flank wide open." He ranked as a major general in the KGB under the code name of "the Eagle."

Wennerstroem is expected to rejoin his family in a Stockholm suburb on Monday, pending completion of the parole arrange-

Police-Linked Killings Virtually Unchecked

Brazil Chief Asks Drive on 'Death Squads'

By Bruce Handler RIO DE JANEIRO, Sept. 6 (WP).—Widespread police bru-tality, including killings by police linked "death squads," continues virtually unchecked in Brazil, and President Ernesto Geisel has asked for a crackdown The issue this time is not the torture of leftist political prisoners, for which Brazil's military regime has been frequently condemned overseas, but rather police violence at the local level. Nova Iguacu is a stronghold of the "death squad," a vigilante gang of off-duty policemen who summarily execute petty criminals in an effort to "clean up "Death-squad" killers crime." usually tie a victim's hands behind his back, shoot him dozens of times and then dump the body on a deserted road. Often they leave a crudely drawn skull and crossbones on the corpse, with the initials EM-Portuguese "esquadrao da morte," or "death squad."

Last year, there were 99 "death squad" slayings in Nova Iguaca. So far this year, the rate has risen to about 15 a month.

Since they first appeared in the 1950s, "death squads" in various Brazilian cities have been held responsible for, or proudly have taken credit for, a total of 1,500 to 2,000 killings. Only a handful of "death-squad" murderers all of them policemen—have been arrested, tried, convicted and

U.S. Businessman Recovering From Moscow Stabbing

MOSCOW, Sept. 6 (AP) .- An American businessman is reported to be recovering from a deep stab wound inflicted by a mentally disturbed Russian who told police he came to Moscow "to kill an American."

James Hefty, 34-year-old representative of the Philadelphia plastics and chemical firm Rohm and Haas, was standing by his company's exhibit at a trade fair yesterday when a man approached, asked him if he was an American and plunged a scalpel into him.

Mikhail Frolov, the deputy director of the international chemical exhibit at Sokolniki Park, said the assailant was a 29-year-old farm worker named Yuri Kaprov from the Ukrainian village of Chernigovo.

Mr. Froloy said Kaprov had been given a psychiatric discharge from the army in 1965. Kaprov did not try to escape.

Fiat Head Agnelli Warns Italy Against Communists in Power

The First president spoke in his capacity as president of the General Confederation of Italian Industry, a counterpart of the National Association of Manufacturers in the United States. His statement appeared in an interview with an economic daily. II Sole-Ventiquating Ore. of Milan. The warning by the chief of Italy's largest privately owned industrial concern was issued amid a broadening nationwide debate on the status of the Communist

Reforms Needed

The party—the strongest Com-munist movement in the West and Italy's second-largest political force—has for years been de-manding that it be given a share in government power. Communist leaders contended that the vast social reforms that the nation needs could not be enacted without their party's help.

The discussion took a new twist last month when Premier Mariano Rumor obtained the Communist party's collaboration to secure passage in parliament of a fiscal austerity program. Left-wing members of Mr. Ru-

Strong Australian Talent

By John Walker

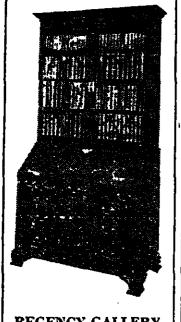

LONDON, Sept. 6 (IET).—David Williamson's "What If You Died Tomorrow?" at the Comedy Theatre is the first complete Australian production to play London since Ray Lawler's "Summer of the Seventeenth Doll" and testilles to that country's strong, young dramatic talents. It is a comedy, not as funny or as passionate as the author's "The Removalists," produced at the Royal Court last season, but harshly amusing nonetheless.

The subject matter-a young Australian writer trying to cope with sudden success — obviously has a greater fascination for the author than for his audience. In one traumatic evening, Andrew (Shane Porteous) has to cope with his uncomprehending parents, unexpectedly returned from a tour of Europe ("We found it rather grubby"), with a suicidal youth they met on the voyage. with a running battle between two publishers squabbling over his latest manuscript, exacerbated by the tantrums of his homosexual agent, and with the independent girl and her rebellious children for whom he has left his wife.

This richness of material enables Williamson to build a series of confrontations, between his author and his parents, whose sexual attitudes are poles, or at least a generation, apart, and between the two publishers, one an extrovert entrepreneur, the other an instantaneous seduction of our hero. For much of the evening, Williamson writes an oldfashioned play, with some contrived entrances and exits But finally having maneuvered the unlikely seduction so that Andrew can be caught with his trousers down by most of the household. he refuses to bring the play to any neat resolution.

Robin Lovejoy's direction is perceptive and sharp and there is some good acting, notably from Ruth Cracknell and Ron Haddrick as the parents anxious that their son should be happy and also should live by their standards, and from Max Phipps as the loudmouthed, energetic pub-

What is worse is that it combines tedious whimsy with insufthought that the demise of the Living Theater had ended the fashion for actors to demonstrate. to their own satisfaction, their superiority to their audience. The performers here, after much forced bonhomie before the show begins, strolling about the theater to the accompaniment of raucous cries, explain that their intention is to "liberate our genitalia." This is an arrogant assumption, perticularly as they then proceed to make fools of themselves on stage, yelling one stultifying song after another, each lacking originality or wit, in short displaying an absence of mind to complement the many gyrating bodies on stage.

The show's intention, of course. to liberate the audiences' wallets. The stalls seats, at £3.30, are as expensive as any other show in London, and more expensive than most, for a show that offers a dozen or so barely talented performers. The experience is determinedly unerotic and deafeningly hearty, as if sex were something on a par with scouting, a suitable activity for

Why Italians Are Reading Agai.

By Paul Holmann

ROME, Sept. 6 (NYT).—Maybe it is the new gasoline price that makes pleasure driving prohibitiyely expensive or maybe it's the new fiscal austerity turning minds to nonmaterial valuesat any rate. Italians are reading more than they have been in a

The Italian translation of Alexander Solzhenitsyn's "The Gulag Archipelago, 1918-1958." brought out by Mondadori, has sold 360,000 copies in a few months. This figure is quite exceptional in a country where only one in 10 persons even buys a newspaper. That so many Italians want to read about secret police practices in the Soviet Union is especially signifident because Italy has the strongest Communist party in the Above all, this summer has brought a veritable literary sensation, and a home-grown one at that: Elsa Morante's new novel, La Storia," The first edition of 100,000 was sold out in weeks and the Einaudi publishing house had to rush new printing orders.

For the first time since anyone can remember, people in railroad compartments and espresso bers discuss a book—the Morante novel -rather than the soccer championship or latest scandal

The author of a few earlier books that were more praised than read, such as "Arthur's Island," Miss Morante has for years been cultivating obscurity. She does not belong to any coterie of intellectuals and does not sign manifestos or publicly back inflammatory causes. Now, apparently to her immense dislike sho suddenly finds herself a celebrity, "Le Morante."

Einaudi and Miss Morante agreed to skip the hard-cover phase and started with a 670page paperback edition of "La Storia" costing about $3. The Storia" costing about $3. The writer declared herself satisfied with a 5 per cent royalty instead of the 10 per cent of a volume's les price customary here.

Miss Morante had a story to tell and has told it well. She also stated a few deeply held beliefs. The story is much more convincing than the philosophical trimmines, eithough the writer seems to have attached great importence to them.

THE ART MARKET

Swiss Fair Chooses To Show Low Profile

By Souren Melikian

ZURICH, Sept. 6 (IET).—The strong optimism on the would-Zurich antique dealers fair that opened a week ago and will be closing its doors Sunday has great charm. Its purpose, in sharp contrast with that of the great London and Paris shows, is to please, not to impress.

Fifty-five dealers from all over Switzerland have, for the second year running, laid out some nice pieces of furniture of the homely. sturdy kind, with a sprinkling of objets d'art, many Swiss, but some

In the Kongresshalle the dealers have thus provided a fairly good cross-section of what can be found in the homes of the traditional-mined Swiss bourgeoisie. It is refreshingly free from the attempts at Louis XIV-style grandeur that characterizes the Paris fairs held every two years at the Grand Palais or London's Grosvenor House, where an excess of museum rarities

The Swiss fair lays stress on furniture: Symbolically the most expensive piece in the whole fair is a sort of huge sideboard incorporating a commonde in the center. Nearly 4 meters long, it looks like a part of a rich farmer's décor in the 18th century. The price asked, 120,000 Swiss Francs ($40,000), reflected be seller's part. A third of that figure would sound more plausible by French or English standards.

Realistic Prices

On the whole, however, the fair is characterized by prices that are high but realistic-perfectly adjusted to the wealth and temperament of the Zurich citizenry. At the stand of Michel Rigaldo of Lausanne, for instance, an oval walnut-veneered dining table of the seventies or eighties of the last century is price at 5,500 Swiss francs. Between its two movable halves, seven additional tablets can be inserted, making if fit to accommodate 25

It is quite rare to find a dining table that can be extended quite so much. At the Hotel Drouot, Paris, where similar tables can be seen from time to time, the price would probably not be very much lower. Or to take another example, a clock of black marble with ormolu, open-work fittings by Delville of Geneva, is offered at 3,600 Swiss francs, Were it not for the signature on the dial, it would be impossible to tell the clock from a Parisian piece made around 1798-1800. Indeed Violette Blanc-Rigaldo, an associate of her brother Michel Rigaldo, points out that the bronzes may well have been imported from Paris. This makes a comparison with the Paris market particularly apt. A French piece of that type would oscillate between 2,500 and 5,000 French francs. Being Swiss, the piece is rarer, and therefore not unduly high.

Out of the mass of useful furniture—wardrobes in which you can store clothes, tables to One of the striking aspects of sit around and have dinner ona stroll rather than with a view to buy, is the diversity of influences undercone by Swiss furniture makers from the earliest periods. Prench-speaking Switalways remained very But German-speaking areas were more hesitant. In the 17th century, for instance, Zurich and Bern were primarily geared to the German world. A very fine wardrobe with strongly cornice. in walnut veneer, 211 centimeters high, and priced at 31,000 Swiss francs, considered typical of late 17th-century Zurich, is directly derived from models first designed by German cabinet makers in Frankfurt. By the late 18th century, French influence swayed as far as Bern: A coiffeuse (dressing table) from Bern displayed by Rigaldo is French in shape, a sort of simple version of the Louis-XIV manner.

The best were brought over by Carmen Porchet of Lausanne, A low, rectangular sideboard, dated 1586, has a superbly carved front name. The central escutcheon heraldic phrase goes, is Italiante: Swiss furniture from the canton of Vaud, like that of neighboring France, was under

A lectern of the Louis XIV period -dynastic names from France are normally used to characterize Italianate: Swiss furniture from French-speaking Switzerland-has no equivalent anywhere. The stern geometrical upper part shaped like a triangular pyramid is supported by a tall stand combining baluster forms.

Brouze Panther

Objects are notably scarcer at the Zurich fair. For those who do not care for enckoo clocks and music boxes, the choice is limited. There is a good bronze panther by Rembrandt Bugatti, about 20 centimeters long, priced at 22,000 Swiss francs, about 50 per cent over the price that it might be offered at in Paris. George Charbonnier of Geneva has the most original selection. There is an extremely good bronze by Barreau, of the late 19th century. It is impressionistic in style and not unlike Dalou's work. Interesting, too, is a selection of Russian objects. A nice cup in silver gilt, stamped with the mark of Fodor Petrov of Mos-cow, was made in 1761 in imitation of German work of an ear-lier period. The 304-gram piece is priced at 15,000 Swiss francs.

Pictures are few. but Josef Bieli of Binningen, near Basle, displays a landscape with figures by Joost-Cornelisz Droogsloot (1584-1666), dated 1657, 65 by 85 centimeters, the price, 60,000 Swiss francs is about the international

The most interesting work, however, also displayed by Bieli among his assortment of Swiss furniture, is a fight scene by Albert Delrive, an obscure French Every now and then highly, painter active in the late 18th century. By Don Oberdorfer TOKYO, Sept. 6 (WP).—Leonard Bernstein said today that he and Alan Jay Lerner have something special cooking to celebrate America's bicentennial next summer—a Broadway musi-cal depicting 19th-centitity Amer-ican life as seen by blacks in the White House kitchen.

Tentatively titled "1600 Pennsylvania Avenue," the collaboration by composer Bernstein ("West Side Story" and others) and lyricist-playwright Lerner ("My Fair Lady" and others) has been bandied about in theater circles for months. In an expansive mood during a Tokyo concert tour, the composer-conductor-planist told a bit more about it than in the past. "We've never collaborated be-fore, though Aian is a dear and old friend of mine, and we've been talking about this now for

White House from 1800 to 1900, from the time it was built for John Adams until the time it acquired its name under Teddy Roosevelt. All of this century is seen from the kitchen through the eyes of four generations of blacks, who have been the only consistent inhabitants of that house," he said. Calling the theme "an idea, that fascinates me," Bernstein said he and Lerner are selecting 19th-century events which are particularly related to the White House kitchen help, such as the Civil War, Emancipation Proclamation, the impeachment of President Andrew Johnson and so on. "There is a very interesting dramatic straight line from 1800 to 1900, without meaning to draw any present-day analogies or concert tour with the New York Philharmonic and other commit-ments, work on "1600 Pennsylvania Avenue" has been proceeding slowly. "Alan's back in New York chewing his nails, but we hope to have it finished this winter." As currently planned, the musical should hit the boards next spring. Capacity Houses

Bernstein has been playing to capacity houses in Tokyo on his third trip to Japan in 18 years.

Dismal Performance by the 'Dismal Science'

NEW YORK, Sept. 6 (AP-DJ).—Just as U.S. economists are finding they do not have all the answers to the current inflationary surge, they are also discovering that proliferating economic woes are-forcing them to alter several of their academic principles.

For instance, the Phillips Curve, which postulates a fixed trade-off between rates of inflation and unemployment, has been shown wanting by the current "stagflation," or inflationary recession, which shows that unemployment and inflation can grow simultaneously.

"No one today holds the naive notion of a fixed curve," says Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago. A Princeton University economics instructor, James Litvack, agrees. "It's a lot more complicated than we econ-omists thought," he says.

That seems true for the whole economy, not just for one formula. In the halcyon days under the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, economists were widely credited with almost un-canny powers to "fine-tune" the econ-combat the business cycle.)

"There's a lot we don't know," says Robert Gordon, professor of economics at the University of California at Berkeley, Prof. Gordon, who is president-elect of the American Economics Association, declares: "Find me an economist who can explain the causes of the current surge of inflation and cure it without massive unemployment, and I'd like to meet him."

Accordingly, classroom instructors are starting to emphasize that they do not have all the answers. We'll stress the humility we must have about the current problems we're in," says Prof. Burton Malkiel, who teaches introductory economies at Princeton. Prof. Richard Lebin, in charge of the introductory course at Yale, feels the same way.

He says: "The dawning on economists that their stories didn't explain everything probably came a lot later to economists than to students, who realized all problems weren't explained so easily. But it took major economic problems rather than the questions of a few students to change us.

The most obvious of those problems the nature of today's inflation. In the ideal textbook world of a short while back, prices rose and fell in response to competitive pressures, and inflation was due to excess demand. Real life is considerably more complicated than that

Economics professors have long recognized that fact and taught it. But today, when, for example, beef prices are high in the store and low on the farm, the professors are putting even more stress than they used to on such institutional pricing factors as labor unions and retail chains

"Under Keynes's influence, we've developed a theory of aggregate demand but haven't even started to develop a theory of aggregate supply"-all the elements influencing a supplier's ask-ing price—says Prof. Gordon. Every forecaster under the sun was off in his projections of prices for 1974."

million during the first seven months of the year, speculated privately that negotiations could start within a week or two. However, spokesmen for the two airlines said that though a merger would provide a "long-term" solution to their problems, federal subsidies were essential now to offset sharply increased costs of

Failed to Agree The airlines have twice before in 1962 and 1971—discussed a possible merger, but could not agree on terms. Because of the turbulent experience recently of both lines, rooted largely in higher fuel prices and a sharp drop in transatiantic tourist travel over alysts believe the chances are much better for such an agreement now.

Evidence of problems at Pan American continued to surface vesterday. The airline announced that its No. 3 executive, William Crilly, executive vice-president for international services, was leaving.

The company said that Mr. Criffy had resigned as a company director and that his administrative duties were being transferred, although he will continue as an officer to complete pending business. It was the latest in a series of highlevel executive changes at Pan Am and it was reminiscent of the situation when Mr. Seawell took over 30 months ago from his ousted predecessor, Najeeb Halaby. At that time, an aide to Mr. Seawell characterized the company's executive suite during Mr. Najeeb's last months as a

"revolving door." Personality Clash

Mr. Crilly had been widely expected until a year ago to take over the title of president from Mr. Seawell. But last fall he was demoted from second to what amounted to third position in the company beneath James Leet, another executive vice-president. Company insiders attributed his fall largely to a personality clash with Mr. Seawell.

In another change yesterday. Pan American said that William Waltrip had been named vicepresident for airline planning and scheduling, replacing Wesley weeks ago to join American Air-

TWA, the stronger of the two globe-circling U.S. carriers, said last year that it was not interested in a merger and that there was little to gain in merging its problems with Pan Am's.

Yesterday, it shifted this position in a statement that said: "We believe that a Pan American merger with TWA could provide one logical and positive step toward the long-term viability of our nation's international air ser-

Pan American officials said the statement was a "sensible one"

Although many airline analysts and executives in both companies appear to think the time is ripe for such a merger, they pointed out that reaching terms could nevertheless be difficult. They noted that talks to consolidate the two airlines' competing transatlantic services ended in failure represents 2.3 per cent of the workforce. In July the rate was 2.2 per cent and in August 1973 it was 1 per cent.

Failures Rise in Japan

TOKYO, Sept. 6 (AP-DJ).-Japan had 938 corporate bankruptcies involving debts of at least 10 million yen each in August, up 7 per cent from July and 30.8 per cent from July, 1973, Teikoku Koshinsho, a business inquiry agency, reported vesterday.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Car Sales Rebound in U.S.

New car sales, down by 20 per cent or more all year, regained some of the lost ground in August, although domestic dealers still reported deliveries were off 2.6 per cent for the month. However, some car and truck makers reported records in the month, and industry analysts noted that sales for the month of 667,237 were only 18,123 units below the all-time high for August of 685,360 domestic sales set a year ago. "It has been almost a year since sales for a month came this close to matching the 1973 records," says one analyst. The 1974 model sales decline began last October, when deliveries were off 11 per cent. Analysts say one reason sales were on the rebound is that apparently many buyers are snapping up 1974 models to beat the $400-plus price rises on the 1975 models. Car importers, whose sales have been off about 25 per cent this year, also fared better last month. Their sales were estimated at 140,000, off 7.5 per cent from August 1978. Their market share was also up to 17.3 per cent, but still below the 18.1 per cent of last August.

Chrysler says it will have to raise prices several times during the 1975 model year on top of an expected $400 to $500 introductory price boost this fall. Company chairman Lynn Townsend says there will be "repricing, prob-ably several times, during the model year" as long as costs continue to rise. Unlike General Motors and Ford, Chrysler has not said exactly how much it plans to raise prices this fall, but Mr. Townsend says the boost will be "right in the ballpark" with the firm's two chief competitors. GM's increase will be a record $446, or 9 per cent, on new models. Ford has tentative $418, or 8 per cent, increase on

Japan Seeks New TriStar Engine

Japan's Transport Minister, Masatoshi To-kunaga, says he will insist that Ali-Nippon Airways' grounded Lockheed TriStar airliners be fitted with new engines before they fly again. He told a press conference he will not permit the use of old models of the Rolls Royce RBengines similar to those which developed faults in two of the domestic airline's fleet of six TriStars. The fleet was grounded following emergency landings by the two airliners in the past week. Each suffered of loss through cracks in the cast alloy outer casing of two of the three engines.

MARKETIKS MANAGER — EUROPE

Medical Equipment Up to $30,000

One of the world's leading and fastest growing manufacturers of medical equipment, laboratory products, etc... is seeking a marketing and sales manager for its expanding European operations.

This position would attract a dynamic, sales-oriented executive with a proven record of suc-cess in the sales and marketing aspects of all types of medical devices, hospital supplies, etc... A man out of the pharmaceutical industry, but oriented toward cardiovascular products, could also be considered. Specific experience in working with distributors is highly desirable. Nationality is open, but fluency in English, a good knowledge of French and preferably one other language would be required. Ideally the age range is between 30 and 45. Location is in the Paris area with fairly substantial European travel. An initial training period in the U.S.A. is envisaged.

DIRECTOR OF INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT — PARIS

Up to F.Fr. 200,000

Our client is a large French and international manufacturer of electronic and electromechanical equipment. Export sales have developed rapidly and a number of foreign subsidiaries are already operating.

This is a newly created position. The executive we seek will take complete charge of the further development of all international activities, based at the Paris head office. While initially a staff position, reporting directly to top management, it could well develop into a line operating respon-sibility at the subsidiary level. He can be of any nationality, age between 35 and 50, multilingual, with fluent French and English a must. While experience in this type of industry is an asset, the main requirements are good overall international business sense with an excellent knowledge of international finance, risk evaluation, financial controls, etc...

Beply to: Box D 4,659, Herald Tribune, Paris.

As a leading international firm of management consultants retained by our clients to select these executives, we undertake that no information will be release

£7500.Quality Manager change jobs for that?

He's worth that amount, no electronics/electro-mechanical company with any sense would let him go without at least offering to match it. However, this £7,500 carries with it responsibility for 1300 quality staff in 12 locations in 6 countries; responsibility through a European headquarters director to the quality vice-president in the USA; a newly created job with a brief which covers basic organisation, people, costs, techniques, facilities and qualification-testing systems for new products. Success as the Quality Manager for this European group with a turnover this year of $400 million (next year $480 million), could lead you to the very top jobs in one of the biggest and most technically advanced and diverse engineering companies in the world. You should have had at least 12 years' experience in electrical/ electronic engineering, including 5 years as a design or manufacturing engineer and the same or more in charge of a substantial quality/ inspection/test department.

You will be based near London; a generous relocation allowance is available. Obviously you must be prepared to travel a good deal, mostly in Europe.

Please telephone for a personal history form, or write mentioning companies in which you are not interested, to: J. Schofield, McCann Recruitment, 36 Howland Street, London W1P 6BD. 01-580 6690.

PROPHETS WITH HONOR

By Alan Barth. Knopf. 254 pp. $7.95.

jurisprudence" of the Warren Court and the "strict constructionism" of the Burger Court (Whatever those labels really Court as an institution has sustained a remarkable prestige in the last 20 years. With the auraof the presidency recently in eclipse and Congress receiving a 27 per cent positive grade in the polls, the judicial branch sails on seemingly stronger than everable to plunge most recently into the political thicket of the presidential transcripts case and emerge with nary a scratch. Certainly the court had (and has) its critics, and "Impeach Earl Warren" signs once rivaled the old Burma Shave signs as the nation's roadside reading. The Burger counterrevolution continues fitfully, and the recent busing decision backed off from suburban passions, while the obscen-ity decision catered to suburban souls. But overall, not since the early nineteen-fiftles has the court aroused profound sectional and ideological passions resulting in lonely interpositions by segre-gationist governors in schoolhouse

Whether this vague but widespread trust of the court is reflected in a greater interest in it. I don't know, but I would not be surprised to learn that it is rivaling the headquarters of the Federal Bureau of Investigation as a popular tourist stopping-off place in Washington. Those laypersons of a more serious bent who would like to learn more about one unique aspect of the court's modus operandi—and pick up a good smattering of legal history and theory in the bargain—are advised to read Alan Barth's "Prophets With Honor." Mr. Barth, who was an editorial writer with The Washington Post for 30 years, has focused on the role of dissenting justices in the decision-making process. Specifically, he has loaded his dice even more by limiting himself to landmark dissents whose thrust was in a later time adopted by a majority of the court. Thus he gives us Justice John M. Harlan's lone dissent in Plessy v. Ferguson, in which the majority laid down the doctrine of separate but equal that Brown v Board of Education would overturn 58 years later; Justice Louis D. Brandels in Olmstead v United States, a wiretapping case of the nineteen-twenties, enun-cisting the right to be left alone": Justice Hugo Black in Betts v. Brady, which denied right to counsel and was overruled in Gideon v. Wainright, and Justice Black again in Colegrove v. Green, which held that the Court could not interfere where the state had unequally apportioned electoral districts, overruled in Baker v. Carr, the "one man, one vote" decision; Justice Harlan Fiske Stone dissenting in the first Jehovah's Witness flag is given freer rein than in a majority opinion where he is homogenizing a variety of views-Most dissents do not achieve immortality as prophecy but some, as Mr. Barth's book attests, have survived on the strength of their moral and intellectual authority, waiting for vindication in a more hospitable future. Some achieve immortality, such as Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes's dissent in Gitlow, which stated the "clear and present danger" test a test that has been used both to defend and penalize speechand Justice Brandels's articula-tion in Ohnstead of the right to privacy, perhaps the quintessen-tial 20th-century right, truly pro-phetic of the new technology of smooping. Justice Harlan saying in Plessy v. Ferguson that the Constitution was color-blind, in 1896, was even more of a voice crying out in the wilderness; it took six decades of black history, laid out finally in dry, footnoted sociological facts, to prove that separate was unequal. Mr. Barth pays exemplary attention to the facts and history of the cases. Swirling through his pages are the judicial doctrines that first-year law students learn in Con Law—Justice Felix Frank-furter's judicial restraint. Justice Black's incorporation of the Bill of Rights into the 14th Amendment, and others less attributable. The issues, legal, social and philosophical, are given a thorough airing.

THROUGH all the "sociological salute case, overturned only three years later in wartime; and Jus-tice William O. Douglas defending freedom of speech in the (William) Dennis case, ership guilty of violating the Smith Act at the height of the cold war.

Where Mr. Barth falls short, I think, is in pulling out any cohering strands common to this group of cases (all involving civil rights); it struck me, for example, that they all turned on federal, that is, Supreme Court, intervention on behalf of the individual against a local sov-creignty. Justice Frankfurter's eloquent, sinuous reasoning becomes the true "villain" of the piece, whether he is erecting "political thickets" or substituting the sanctity of the legislature's right to legislate, so long as it claimed the faintest reason for its action, for the outmoded state's rights of Plessy. None of Frankfurter's dire forebodings about the court's dissipating its moral capital have come true: indeed it has been just the opposite—at least so far as these cases are concerned. So Mr. Barth has another prophet in his book; one not without honor, but still a false one.

Comeback Victory Puts King in Final

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 6 court covered to the dismay of (UPI).-Billie Jean King defeat-Julie Heldman to stumble into the women's singles final at the U.S. Open tennis championships today, and Evonne Goolagong was within two games of upsetting top-seeded Chris Evert when the match was stopper by rain.

Eillie, 30, reversed her threeset loss to Heldman in the third round last year with a 2-6, 6-3, 6-1 victory, while Evenne, who has not lost to Chris in three previous matches on grass, led Evert 6-0, 4-3, and serving, when a steady drizzle sent the players scurrying to the locker room.

Officials waited three hours before giving up on a resump-tion of play. The match will be completed tomorrow.

Goolsgong, who has won all the major titles with the exception of the U.S. Open, was unhappy about the stoppage, with victory within her grasp, but referee Mike to serve the seventh game of the second set, ordered the center a capacity crowd of more than 14.500.

In the first set, Billie Jean did not play like a woman who has won five Wimbledon and three Forest Hills crowns. Heldman bounced her out in the third round last year when King was suffering from flu and heat

Although Billie Jean denied she had last year's result on her mind, she was tentative in everything she did and failed to get many first serves in.

But her great experience got her back into the match and midway through the second set she came to the net to punch home winning volleys.

Billie Jean held for 1-1 in the first set and then did not hold another service. Thus ended the latest contretemps surrounding the America's Cup, a trophy minted amid controversy 123 years ago and grown accustomed to it since. The issue this time was the manner in which the two main winch drums were set into the deck of Courageous.

Polish Girl Sprints to Double But Russians Dominate Track

ROME, Sept. 6 (UPI).—Irena Szewinska of Poland became the first double gold medalist at the European track and field chamnionships today and Russia boosted its gold medal total to seven on the fourth day of competition.

Szewinska added the 200-meter title to the 100 meters she won on Tuesday with another victory over East Germany's reigning champion, Renate Stecher. long-legged Pole came off the bend trailing by a meter but stormed past Stecher on the straight to take the gold in 22.51 seconds, with Finland's Mona-Lisa Pursiainen taking the bronze to repeat the order of the 100 talks on contracts; there should be collective discussions between managers and players on all matters affecting their livelihood; players should be represented on the game's decision-making bodies, and they should be allowed legal representation at disciplinary hearings. The proposals by the commission of nine men and one woman who took 15 months to prepare their report, are not enforceable

"It has to be understood by all those concerned that relations in clubs must be based on mutual consent," the report said. "The rights of players as employees must be recognized." The commission said that the financial outlook for clubs was bleak, especially for those in the lower divisions. It produced figures showing that between the 1968-69 and 1972-73 seasons, English League clubs lost a total of £1,700,000 and a third of the clubs in Division One failed to make a profit. Other statistics showed that of 100 players whose salaries for 1972 were examined, mly five earned more than £2,000 ($21,600). The majority were paid between £1,850 and £3,000.

"All you

behind you so we Buchwald can get on with the business of running the country?"

I explained to Roger that it wasn't my decision to make the economy the major issue of the month. I was on vacation and some subordinate chose it as the big news story to replace Water-gate. "If I had been here," I said. "I would have gone with how much money Nelson Rockefeller has."

"Well," said Petulant, "people are getting sick and tired of you guys picking on government spending and two-digit inflation all the time. Good gries. we've always had government spending and inflation. What's the big deal about a sagging economy?

"It isn't just government spending, Roger," I said. "It's also the stock market which has gone to hell the bank loan rates that have soared to the skies and the price of food and oil. can't just close our eyes to these

"Why not? If you ask me." Petulant said, "I think you guys

Hitler Castle for Sale

LONDON, Sept. 6 (Reuters) .-14th-century castle from which Hitler is reputed to have directed the invasion of France in 1940 is up for sale for about $2 million. Ziegenberg Castle, in the hills above the West German city of Frankfurt, is being offered through a firm of London real estate agents. Facilities include a beer cellar and several underground passages leading to an underground bunker complex.

WASHINGTON.—The people just cooked up the sagging economy to sell newspapers."

> "Now, wait a minute, Roger," I said angrily. "I warned you that the day we stopped printing stories about Watergate we'd all be in trouble. Watergate kept this country going for two years. We had inflation, high grocery prices and automobile cost raises before but no one cared.

"The country went blithely along wallowing in Watergate and everyone was satisfied to read about nothing but the evil concocted in the White House. The truth is, Roger, we needed Richard Nixon and his merry crew to make us forget what was really going on. Once he resigned, we had no choice but to write about the sagging

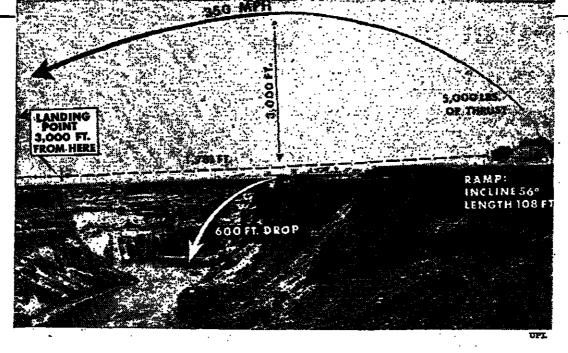

"Why don't you write about President Ford?" Petulant asked. "We have, Roger, we have. But he's on a honeymoon and how much can you write about a guy on a honeymoon? Jerry Ford is nice guy-if he wasn't we wouldn't call him Jerry. But when it comes to hard news he's never going to replace a sagging

"I still think you could find something good to write about inflation."

"We're trying, Roger. Do you know what it's like to be a news editor and have to decide whether to put the economy on the front page or Kurt Waldheim, man of the year'? Or 'Is Latin America drifting toward the center?' Those are the kind of stories we've had to deal with since Watergate fizzled out.

The other day an editor called me up and said. Twe got the choice of leading with a series titled "The Troubled Strip Miner or "Swinging Scranton, Pa." Which one do you think I ought to use?' So don't complain to me, Roger. You were the one who wanted us to put Watergate behind us. Without Nixon to kick around anymore, we're all stuck with a sagging economy." "Maybe Nixon will get indicted?" Petulant said hopefully. "Perhaps," I said, "but don't get your hopes up. President Ford could pardon him, and then it will only be a one-day story."

The Leap of Evel Knievel's Life

By Jon Nordheimer

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Sept. 6 (NYT).—Beyond the first row of campers parked in Tim Qualles's horse pasture today was a dirt motorcycle track with a squadron of racers chasing each other with angry, throaty blasts of engine throttle. And 100 yards past the noise and flying mud, on the lip of the Snake River Canyon, was the most celebrated piece of merchandise to rise out of the Idaho earth since the baking Evel Knievel's red, white and blue Sky-Cycle X-2 was locked into a slot on a slender finger of steel track aimed at the cloudless sky.

About 1,500 feet away was the morthern rim of the canyon. In between, yawning some 540 feet below the Sky-Cycle's perch, was the canyon itself, with the green ribbon of the Snake River, reduced from a slithering monster of the springtime rains to a summer-dry trickle at the bottom.

While there have been a few been well behaved, a composite of motorcycle aficionados from American society. And it is apparent that the turnout will fall far beneath the promoters

Still, the prospect of a calamity-either to Knievel or to the thousands of spectators surging to the rim of the canyon -bas caused some residents of this farming center to reconsider the enthusiasm that first greeted the announcement that th, daredevil would attempt the "rim-to-rim" jump here.

"This community has rolled over and played dead for everything Evel and his people wanted," asserted Richard High, the editor of the Twin Falls Times-News, perhaps the most outspoken critic of the town boosters who believed that Knievel would "put Twin Falls on the map" and bring an economic windfall.

"We've been slickered by come very sharp promotion, and I hope we get past this weekend without any serious trouble," High said. High's concern turned to anger on Labor Day, when lievel's private security guards would not permit the editor to walk on city property near the jump site and threatened him with weapons. "This community is not about to become a banana republic even for the great day of Evel's jump," the editor wrote in his paper the next day.
